

We used to receive 5-10 calls a night for solicitation...now maybe 1 a week.
We used to get calls as early as 6am and as late as 11pm....now none at that time.

We used to get solicitation calls on Sunday....now none.

When we received all those calls, we had to view "caller-id" every time to ensure that it was someone we knew.....real pain.

Many callers were very rude and just refused to take "no".

If you lessen the restrictions, this will just allow these unwanted calls to resume. The Indiana Law on this had allowed home life to restore to normal and not have to be worried about those menacing calls several times a day. The persistent ringing of the phone can be an imposition in our life and we should be allowed to have some control over it.
